

Help For Our Small Business Clients

The great thing about being your own boss is that no-one can tell you what to do (apart from your customers, suppliers, staff, government, your spouse etc), because you are the boss!

One of the other great things about being your own boss is you are expected to be an expert on EVERYTHING - Law, HR, Sales, Marketing, Accounts, IT, etc. All the day-to-day functions of running a small business. How easy would it be if you just had to do your job, and not worry about all the other tasks.

Over the last 12 months we have been spending a lot of time talking to clients about their greatest concerns with running a small business. They all responded the same way:- there are just so many things to know about. So many issues beyond the core business that take up so much time! Being aware of all these issues is one thing, but you then need to ensure you are 'up-to-date' with any changes that may occur in each area just to ensure you are operating properly. This seems to have become a massive task on its own right.

In an effort to assist our small business clients we have formed relationships with a variety of professional service providers to allow us to offer support to our clients. This network of people have expertise in all aspects of daily business operations. So if you have questions such as:-

- Am I paying too much for my phone bill, or
- Do I have the right insurance coverage, or
- What are my legal obligations with staff leave entitlements, or
- What do I have to do to buy my own business premises, or
- How can I market my business to a new clients, or
- Any question on improving your business.

We have carefully selected this group to ensure our clients get the best support available. So talk to us about your business and what your plans are and we can work together to ensure your success.
